

The Eighteenth Century

Theory and Interpretation

VOLUME 52

FALL/WINTER 2011

NUMBERS 3-4

Special Issue

The Drift of Fiction:
Reconsidering the Eighteenth-Century Novel

Guest Editor: Julie Park

INTRODUCTION

The Drift of Fiction 243
Julie Park

CHARACTER

Female Quixotism and the Novel: Character and Plausibility,
Honesty and Fidelity 249
April Alliston

'Lay Aside My Character': The Personate Novel and Beyond 271
Jonathan Lamb

NOVEL MEDIA

Giving Power to the Medium: Recovering the 1750s 289
Christina Lupton

The Air of Tom Jones; or, What Rose from the Novel 303
Jayne Elizabeth Lewis

BELIEVING THE UNREAL

Realism and the Unreal in The Female American 323
Mary Helen McMurrin

Reading Mistakes in Heliodorus 343
Scott Black

RECONSIDERING THE SOCIAL REAL

The Secret History of the Rise of the Novel: The Novel and the Middle Class in English Studies 361
George Boulukos

Vicars and Squires: Religion and the Rise of the English Marriage Plot 383
Lisa O'Connell

APART: LIVES, THINGS, AND WORDS

Captain Singleton: An Epic of Mitsein? 403
Jody Greene

Disjecta Membra: Smollett and the Novel in Pieces 423
Mark Blackwell

Crusoe's Island of Misfit Things 443
Lynn Festa

Notes on Contributors 472