

The Eighteenth Century

Theory and Interpretation

---

VOLUME 50

SPRING 2009

NUMBER 1

---

Special Issue

The Future of Feminist Theory in Eighteenth-Century Studies

Guest Editor: Laura J. Rosenthal

Introduction: Recovering from Recovery Laura J. Rosenthal	1
The Future of Feminist Theory and Eighteenth-Century Studies Ellen Pollak	13
And What About French Women Writers? Joan DeJean	21
Future Conditional: Feminist Theory, New Historicism, and Eighteenth-Century Studies Alison Conway	25
Feminism and Eighteenth-Century Studies: Working in the Bordello of History Melissa Mowry	33
Feminist Biography: A Contradiction in Terms? Judith P. Zinsser	43
The Achievement of Scholarly Authority for Women: Trends in the Interpretation of Eighteenth-Century Fiction Toni Bowers	51
Phillis Wheatley's Ghosts: The Racial Melancholy of New England Protestants Jennifer Thorn	73
From the Female Gothic to a Feminist Theory of History: Ann Radcliffe and the Scottish Enlightenment JoEllen DeLucia	101
Notes on Contributors	117