

The Eighteenth Century

Theory and Interpretation

VOLUME 54	SPRING 2013	NUMBER 1
Good Names: Olaudah Equiano or Gustavus Vassa Peter Jaros		1
“Clandestine Schemes”: Burney’s Cecilia and the Marriage Act Melissa J. Ganz		25
Chance Enlightenments, Choice Superstitions: Walpole’s Historic Doubts and Enlightenment Historicism Abby Coykendall		53
Juba’s “Black Face” / Lady Delacour’s “Mask”: Plotting Domesticity in Maria Edgeworth’s Belinda Sharon Smith		71
The Dryden-Davenant Tempest , Wonder Production, and the State of Natural Philosophy in 1667 John Shanahan		91
Critical Conversations		119
Why We Argue About the Way We Read: An Introduction Lisa A. Freeman		121
Why We Do (or Don’t) Argue About the Way We Read Emily Hodgson Anderson		125
Reading, Constraint, and Freedom Suvir Kaul		129
Pluralistic Predilections: Surface Reading as Not-Altgether-New Resource Stuart Sherman		133
The Suspicious Reader Surprised, Or, What I Learned from “Surface Reading” Kristina Straub		139
Notes on Contributors		145