

The Eighteenth Century
Theory and Interpretation

VOLUME 50

SUMMER/FALL 2009

NUMBERS 2-3

Special Issue

Technologies of Emotion

Guest Editor: Laura Mandell

Introduction: Histories of Print, Histories of Emotion Laura Mandell	119
Ego non sum Ego : John Dunton and the Consolations of Print Jody Greene	127
The Invention of a Public Machine for Revolutionary Sentiment: The Boston Committee of Correspondence William B. Warner	145
Compulsory Narration, Sentimental Interface: Going through the Motions of Emotion Suzie Park	165
Radical Moral Authority and Desire: The Image of the Male Romantic Poet in Frontispiece Portraits of Byron and Shelley Gerald Egan	185
On Going Steady with Novels Deidre Lynch	207
Mastery and Melancholy in Suburbia Andrea Henderson	221
"All these lovers of books have themselves become books!": Leigh Hunt in his Library Jacqueline George	245
Response: Some Thoughts on Print Culture and the Emotions Jonathan Krammick	263
Notes on Contributors	269