

The Eighteenth Century
Theory and Interpretation

---

VOLUME 51

SPRING/SUMMER 2010

NUMBERS 1-2

---

- A Hungarian Revolution in Restoration England:
Henry Stubbe, Radical Islam, and the Rye House Plot 1
Humberto Garcia
- Optics, Gender, and the Eighteenth-Century Gaze:
Looking at Eliza Haywood's Anti-Pamela 27
Rivka Swenson
- "Profess as Much as I": Dignity as Authority in the Poetry of Sarah Fyge Egerton 45
Michael Genovese
- Mentoring and Mimicry in Boswell's Life of Johnson 67
Anthony W. Lee
- "Un Sopha rose brodé d'argent": Crébillon films and the Rococo 87
Rori Bloom
- British Models of Colonial Governance:
Adam Smith and John Bruce on the Cape Colony 103
David Johnson
- The Impossibility of Sympathy 129
Sean Gaston
- Fictional Mechanics: Haywood, Reading, and the Passions 153
Rebecca Tierney-Hynes
- The Temporality of the Public in The Tatler and The Spectator 173
Amy Witherbee
- Gendering India: Effeminacy and the Scottish Enlightenment's
Debates over Virtue and Luxury 193
Jeng-Guo S. Chen

Cottage Industry: The Ladies of Llangollen and the Symbolic Capital of the Cottage Ornée Nicole Reynolds	211
Breaking the Frame Elizabeth A. Bohls	229
The “Oldest Profession” Made Modern Lisa A. Freeman	235
Performing Criticism in Early America Justine S. Murison	241
Buying and Selling Luxury in Seventeenth-Century England Rachel Ramsey	245
Finding Room for Things Barbara M. Benedict	251
Notes on Contributors	257